

I just have to say, Jim, I called it, didn't I? On my way home from work I called Jim and I told him to get ready for some craziness. I was sooo right. It was another great Friday night, and we once again returned to our roots -- the driveway. Nothing beats a sunny summer evening sitting in the driveway. Special thanks to Jimmy and Lori for the tasty treats. And I'm sure that there was a quote of the night -- I just don't remember it. Sigh. Story of my life.

Upcoming events:

Vince's birthday is Wednesday, April 21. Be sure to pour some out for our homie that night.

Also, we're gearing up for the garage sale. If you have any big items, why don't you email a description to either Carole or Jodi so that they can include it in the ad. The sale will be Friday and Saturday (right?), so any help you can offer (if you're selling stuff) will be much appreciated. I'm sure it will be a lot of hard work with no fun involved -- yeah right.

I hope the weather is just as nice this Friday. See you all then.

P.S. -- Don't forget that Red's website is up and running
